

Course Cartridges

Definition

Course cartridges are material provided by textbook publishers ready to load into Blackboard.

Policy

The use of course cartridges is permitted in the Blackboard system. Course cartridges should be loaded by the instructor.

Procedure

For user:

From the website and/or the book itself, there should be a course cartridge identification number for the cartridge that you want to correspond in your course. Make sure that this identification number is compatible with the Blackboard software version (currently Blackboard 7.3). After the number has been retrieved, go to the import course cartridge link inside the control panel and enter the identification number there.

If you have any questions about the identification number or have trouble finding it, you should contact the publisher.
