Our mission is to provide quality academic education in the scientific study of family, thereby stimulating students' intellectual curiosity; developing their research and leadership skills and their personal and civic responsibilities; and promoting diversity and respect for multiple family forms.

Keynote Speaker

Dr. Janice Faye Moore

Ph.D. - Family Studies, Texas Woman's University
M.S. - Applied Gerontology, University of North Texas
B.S. - Social Work, Southern University New Orleans

Dr. Janice Faye Moore is the director of the Foster Grandparent Program at The Senior Source, which is a non-profit social service agency that provides volunteer opportunities, advocacy, education, and information to older adults and their family members. She has worked at the agency for 23 years.

Dr. Moore's research dissertation titled "Caregiving: An Exploration of African American Male Caregiver Roles in Texas", qualitatively looked at how African American male caregivers identified their role as caregivers.

Dr. Moore is involved in several professional and community projects. They include Caregiver Connection and AIDS Ministries at St. Luke Community United Methodist Church, Together We Can Caregiver Conference Planning Committee, Dallas Independent School District Maya Angelou High School Site Based Decision Making Team Community Member, and Girl Scouts of Northeast Texas Council. Professional interests include caregiving and caregiver roles, intergenerational activities, community volunteering, mentoring and gerontology.

Dr. Moore is married to Donald Payton, a local historian. She has two adult stepchildren and two granddaughters.

Family Sciences Academic Programs & Center

Counseling and Development

The Counseling and Development program of the Department of Family Sciences is an exciting and dynamic area that offers professional training and development leading to a Master's Degree in Counseling and Development (M.S.). Students may choose to focus on community counseling, professional school counseling, or a dual degree in counseling and music therapy. This degree will prepare students to be eligible to receive licensure as a professional counselor (LPC) and/or certification as a professional school counselor. Upon completion of three extra elective courses, students are also eligible to become licensed as a marriage and family therapist (LMFT).

Early Childhood Development and Education

The Child Development / Early Childhood Education program prepares students for a variety of professional roles focused on serving the needs of children and their families. Potential roles include the following: parent educator; teaching young children; administration of children's programs; public and private agencies focused on children and families; early childhood intervention; child life specialist; and other roles requiring similar knowledge and skills. Additionally, graduates of the doctoral program are prepared to teach at the college and university level.

Family Studies

A degree in Family Studies prepares students to work in a variety of satisfying career roles aimed at strengthening families and creating positive futures for everyone. Family Studies graduates have careers in human services and family-related agencies working with families in social service agencies ranging from child to geriatric services to church and family planning agencies. They also may be employed as parent or family life educators. Also, a degree in Family Studies is an excellent foundation for graduate degrees in family studies, family therapy, and counseling and development.

Family Therapy

Licensed Marriage and Family Therapists use systemic family therapy theories in providing therapy for couples, families, individuals, and groups in a wide variety of settings, including private practice, social service agencies, hospitals and other medical settings, the military, faith communities, schools, colleges and universities, and corporate employee assistance programs. Doctoral graduates may also teach family therapy in higher education.

Family Sciences Center

The Center houses and supports all clinical and research efforts conducted by the Department. Currently the Center hosts the Counseling and Family Therapy Clinic and the Integrated Clinic for Behavior & Learning Evaluation; which are a critical part of the Counseling & Development and Family Therapy programs, as well as the College of Professional Education.
