

Department of History and Government, Texas Woman's University

Interested in Teaching Basic Survey Courses in History and Government in Community Colleges, or Dual-Credit Courses in High Schools?

Consider the Option of a Master's Degree at TWU in History (with 21 credit hours of History, including a Professional Paper, and 18 credit hours of Government), or in Government (21 credit hours of Government, including a Professional Paper, and 18 credit hours of History)

TWU Offers a Mix of Evening and Blended Distance Education Graduate Courses in U.S. and global aspects of history, politics, and law

Successful completion of the program gives students two teaching fields, and the advanced degree required to teach at two-year colleges and offer dual-credit courses in high school

For more information, contact Dr. Mark Kessler, Chair, Department of History and Government (mkessler@twu.edu)