Pioneers aren’t just figures from history – the early settlers who made their way through the rugged frontier to discover new territories. Today’s pioneers set out to discover cures for diseases, measures to improve public health, new ways to educate a shifting population and more. Today’s pioneers, like those early settlers, strive to make a better life for themselves and their families, and to make the world a better place.

THE MODERN PIONEER

At TWU, pioneers explore beyond the traditional classroom and laboratory, working side by side with faculty who are pioneers in their own fields.

What is a [PIONEER]?

Pioneers aren’t just figures from history – the early settlers who made their way through the rugged frontier to discover new territories. Today’s pioneers set out to discover cures for diseases, measures to improve public health, new ways to educate a shifting population and more. Today’s pioneers, like those early settlers, strive to make a better life for themselves and their families, and to make the world a better place.

THE PIONEER WOMAN

The statue, unveiled in 1938 in honor of the Texas Centennial, pays tribute to the spirit of the pioneer woman of Texas: “Marking a trail in a pathless wilderness, pressing forward with unswerving courage, she met each untried situation with a resourcefulness equal to the need …”
Your [RESEARCH]

The quest for knowledge — the need to discover — has always moved pioneers forward. At TWU, students and faculty conduct research that addresses important issues facing today’s society in areas related to health, education and quality of life.

QUALITATIVE INQUIRY The Center for Qualitative Inquiry on the Denton campus provides multidisciplinary support to TWU graduate students involved in qualitative research. Resources include high-end software and hardware, publications and workshops. www.twu.edu/qualitative-inquiry

CREATIVE ARTS AND RESEARCH SYMPOSIUM TWU’s annual Student Creative Arts and Research Symposium offers opportunities for graduate and undergraduate students to present their research or visual arts activities, build professional skills and learn about the scholarship of their peers. www.twu.edu/research-symposium

RESEARCH FACULTY TWU faculty are pioneers in their fields — from being the first to document bone loss in space in a project with NASA, to developing a treatment model taught in occupational therapy education throughout the world, to conducting research that sets standards of care for pregnant women. www.twu.edu/research-faculty

Student artists and scholars present research on subjects ranging from technology to nutrition, history, the environment and the conceptual and physical process of creating art during the annual Student Creative Arts and Research Symposium.

Each year several graduate students are selected as TWU Chancellor’s Student Research Scholars and are recognized for their outstanding achievements in research and creative arts endeavors.
