

Contributors

Valeria M. Estrada (University Diversity: A Study of Hispanic Women in Higher Education) is an undergraduate History major at Texas Woman's University and a member of the Eta Nu Chapter of Phi Alpha Theta.

Alec Head (Fortitude and Fortune: The Journey to Normandy) is an undergraduate History major at Texas Woman's University and a member of the Eta Nu Chapter of Phi Alpha Theta. A version of this paper was presented at the 2017 North Central Texas Regional Phi Alpha Theta History Conference in Nacogdoches, Texas in April 2017.

Elizabeth Headrick (Slippers, Snuff Boxes, and Slaves: What the Things Left Behind Say about Those Living in the Colonial Era) is a Master's candidate in Library and Information Science at Texas Woman's University and a member of the Eta Nu Chapter of Phi Alpha Theta.

Ukachi Jibunoh (Patricia Cole: Living the Civil Rights Movement) is an undergraduate student at Tarrant County Community College. Ms. Jibunoh's essay was awarded first place in the 2017 Living History Essay Contest. Ms. Jibunoh's faculty mentor is Professor Meredith May.

Katerina Kvapilova (Bolshevik Surveillance in Historiography) is a MA candidate in History at Texas Woman's University and a member of the Eta Nu Chapter of Phi Alpha Theta

Cindy Lewis (Operational Discrepancy: An Analysis of the CIA's Success in Iran and Guatemala and Subsequent Failure in Cuba) is a MA candidate in History at Texas Woman's University and a member of the Eta Nu Chapter of Phi Alpha Theta. A version of this paper was presented at the 2017 North Central Texas Regional Phi Alpha Theta History Conference in Nacogdoches, Texas in April 2017.

---

Melissa Queen (The Hidden Importance of Dallas: Anxiety, Media, and Texas Secession) is a M.A. candidate in History at Texas Woman's University

Tamika Roach (The Show Must Go On: Censorship and Popular Culture in the German Democratic Republic, 1945-1989) is a M.A. candidate in History at Texas Woman's University and a member of the Eta Nu Chapter of Phi Alpha Theta.

Melissa Thiel (The Israeli-Palestinian Conflict: A Historiographic Essay) is a MA candidate in History at Texas Woman's University and a member of the Eta Nu Chapter of Phi Alpha Theta

Anh Vo (What was Left Behind after America Withdrew from Vietnam?) is an undergraduate student at Collin College. Ms. Vo's essay was awarded second place in the 2017 Living History Essay Contest. Ms. Vo's faculty mentor is Professor Melody Miyamoto

---